

Research Opportunities for Medical Students

A key goal of the Faculty of Medicine is to promote translational research in an effort to facilitate the translation of research discoveries to clinical practice. Towards this goal, we would like to provide the opportunity for medical students to work with leading researchers in the Faculty of Medicine.

The Research Office will assist medical students in identifying professors within their field of interest and help to set up opportunities for research electives, or volunteer observers in the Faculty.

If you would like to work in a research laboratory during the fall and winter/spring terms, please contact the Research Office at grad-medpairing@uOttawa.ca, and provide the following information:

1. Field of interest;
2. The type of experience that you seek (Research Electives, Volunteer Observer, etc).

We will match you with professors in our Faculty, who are international leaders in their field. Note that this opportunity is offered in addition to our Summer Studentship Program.
